Dear Mr. White,

Just letting you know the story is planned to air tomorrow morning on our statewide California Report show, and is published by both KQED and the Guardian online later in the afternoon.

Best,

Sakiy

Please see attached copy of our report preparation policy there is nothing specific about draft one as the policy was already specific about officers responsibilities related to report accuracy. As I also mentioned there is also an annotation that the complaint is in the audit trail. In regard to the study you sent I can only comment on our expertise, and we have seen time savings. I anticipate that this will continue to improve as the AI capabilities improve. Thanks

And one more follow up question. Can you send me the department's policy on use of Axon Draft One?

Best,

Hi again Captain White,

Thank you again for your time. I was wondering if you saw this early study about Axon "Draft One" time-savings,.. and if so what you make of it?

<https://gov2.california-protection.outlook.com/?url=https://www.kqed.org/arts/2020/09/21/1007529/210908-what-should-police-be-doing-the-reporter-police-verbally-abuses-a-citizen/>

It sounds like you have experienced greater time savings, but let me know if you have thoughts on why the study might have gotten these results?

Best,

Sakiy

Delighted to speak with you again. I am interested to hear the Campbell policy department's views on officer accountability with respect to Axon Draft One. Would it be possible to schedule a time to meet with one or more officers in the department regarding the Axon One use of software and how it is going to fit into their day-to-day work?

Best,

Sakiy
